The screenshot displays the SolidWorks 2020 SP1.0 Full Premium interface. The main window shows a 3D model of a heater assembly with a fluid simulation. The simulation results are visualized as blue flow trajectories and a temperature contour plot. A color scale on the left indicates temperatures ranging from 10.00 to 40.00 °C. The tree view on the left shows the assembly structure, including input data, computational domain, fluid subdomains, solid materials (Aluminum 6061, Conductor, Insulator), boundary conditions, heat sources, porous media, and mesh. A data table for the heater's volumetric heat exchange coefficient is shown in the bottom left, along with a graph of heat exchange coefficient vs. mass flow rate.
